

ODDS AND ENDS.

Silkgrowers were sent to Georgia to begin business in 1782.

The first harp was a tortoise shell with a string tied across it.

A short absence quickens love; a long absence kills it.—Mira-beau.

The earliest reaping hook was the lower jaw of an antelope lashed to a stick.

The Western Union Telegraph company estimates 100,000,000 envelopes a year.

Spices of wood, horn, metal or stone have been made in every country from prehistoric ages.

Wind, which destroys blossoms and immature fruit, is the great enemy of the coffee tree in Ceylon.

The telescope was discovered by the children of a lensmaker, who were playing with a couple of lenses.

Dr. Schlemann found in the ruins of Troy pottery vessels that had been carefully turned on a wheel.

There is little danger of discovering your identity if you blow your nose in the dark unless everybody knows your blow.

The motto of the Buckingham (W. Va.) Delta is, "A weekly newspaper with two objects—to please the public and support the editor."

The discovery of iodine was accidentally made by Courtois, a French soapmaker, who found the new substance in the ash of seaweed.

Mr. McCook was showing some visitors over the house. Arriving at the nursery, he remarked, "This gentleman, is the lawlorn."

Berthollet made the discovery of a new bleaching process by accidentally noticing the corks with which he had stopped the bottles containing his chlorine gas.

Emperor William of Germany has approved the design of a new decoration of the royal protector of Prussian Freemasons. The design consists of a red cross with an eye in each corner.

A large crawfish was recently caught alive on the Guernsey coast and has been placed in the Jersey aquarium. From head to tail it measures 3 feet and from tip of horn to tip of tail 4 feet 4 inches, while its girth is 18 inches.

Lake George has hitherto been well protected by law in respect to fishing, but the last New York legislature passed an act permitting spearing in winter and fishing through the ice, and it is claimed now that the results of this will be to clean out the fish rapidly.

Superintendent Byrnes on Prison Reform.

"What do you think of the present system of punishment as a preventive of crime?" asked a reporter of Superintendent Byrnes of the New York Police Department. "I think it could be greatly improved. The turning of a convict abruptly out on the community penitents after a term of confinement does him harm. He feels lost. He is abandoned. He has no fair chance to make a honest living, and the result is a relapse into crime. I think the Massachusetts system of probation is a good one if properly, carefully, intelligently carried out.

"There is one suggestion I would respectfully make to our lawmakers. Instead of keeping a convict locked up in prison until the moment of complete discharge, there should be a system by which convicts, when they had served half or three-quarters of their term, should be removed to an institution where they would have a prescribed degree of liberty, where they could meet and mix with their fellow men, and where they would gain confidence, would gradually restore them to society and make them vastly better fitted to begin anew when they got their complete discharge.

Another great benefit this system would bring is this. The partial freedom existing on condition of good behavior would cultivate a habit and force of self control and perseverance in right doing, which constitute the only hope of reformation there is for criminals. It would, I believe, be the best reformatory method if adopted. In any case, it would be worth trying."

An Antislavery Mailbox.

Mr. Alexander Campbell, house steward to the Duke of Westminster, has patented an improved letter box which is intended to prevent the abstraction of letters, either from pillar boxes in the streets or from the boxes attached to the doors of houses or offices. The box contains an upper chamber in which the letter is deposited and a lower chamber in which it ultimately falls. The slit for admitting letters into the upper chamber is covered by a flap, which, when it is raised in order to insert the letter, the flap is connected by levers with the floor of the chamber in such a manner that this is closed while the flap is open and falls down like a trapdoor when the flap is shut, allowing the letter to fall into the chamber below. In this way the flap is open, even in a small degree, the lower chamber is completely cut off by the floor of the first, and no instruments can be carried down into it. The amount of money lost annually by the abstraction of letters through the slit for inserting is very considerable, and the invention seems likely, wherever it is adopted, to put a stop to robberies.—London Times.

Saved by His Wit.

A man in England was once set upon by an infuriated rabble and was soon in danger of his life. His rescuer was a good man, a good man, he cried out while they were dragging him along, "A guinea for the man who will take my side." A fellow near at hand, who had been cursing him, responded with, "Here you are, sir." "Hit him, boys," quipped above, "the briber; 'hit him, boys. He's a traitor." "Hurray!" yelled the mob; "let's hit him." And for an instant they left their prisoner loose to seize upon the victim whom he designated. But the instant was enough for the first victim. He ducked his head, got mixed in the crowd, and in a moment had quitted the scene.—San Francisco Argonaut.

The Little "Romancer."

Little Tommy is excessively fond of preying and killing his mother for a second help. She refuses. The youngster appears resigned. Then all at once, and very gravely, he says:

"Do you know, ma, what happened the other day in the next street? There was a little chap to whom his mother wouldn't give any preserves. And then?"

"Come, what next?"

"Next day he tumbled into a well!"—Calendar Jintanarresque.

Big Price For An Egg.

At the sale of duplicates of birds' eggs and skins from the collection of Baron d'Hamonville, held a few days ago, one of the great auk, a species which is now extinct, was sold to Sir Vauxney H. Cruve for 800 guineas. It was formerly in the collection of the late Mr. Yarrall, from whom it passed in 1856 to the late Mr. Bond and then to Baron d'Hamonville.—Paris Herald.

One Exception.

HENRY MEYER,

NAPOLEON, OHIO.

Finding the Furniture.

Take an absolutely impossible case, draw the lines of the mouth upward, as in a laugh, and the effect is agreeable; draw the lines downward, as in grief, and they are most decidedly disagreeable.

Straight lines as well as curved lines produce the effect of solidity, durability and support. This is a constructive axiom, accepted from the earliest ages. On this principle waistcoatings, doors and mantels are built in straight and curved lines. But it would be manifestly wrong to furnish a mantel with ornaments whose shape or proportions would give a rounding or straight effect unless you desire such a room to be stiff and prim.

The popular trend, with its upholding branches, forming down pointing angles, has a look of cheerfulness about it, while the willow with its drooping branches, forming up turning angles, produces quite an opposite effect and in all countries typifies mourning and sadness.

If, in the putting up of decorations, we see to it that lines from the tops of the different objects with which we are to decorate a room angles pointing downward, then the effect produced will be cheerful. If the points of the article point upward, the effect will be opposite.—Up-holster.

Children's Eating.

Some parents compel their children to eat against their will, as when they come to the breakfast table without an appetite, or have lost it in prospect of a visit or a ride, or for the sake of "eating their plates clean" in discouragement of wasteful habits. Unless we are thirsty we cannot drink. The purest spring water without aversion, and as for eating when there is no appetite it is revolting, as any one may prove to himself by attempting to take a second meal in 30 minutes after having eaten a regular dinner. The appetite, the hunger, is excited by the presence of gastric juice about the stomach, but if there is no gastric juice there can be no hunger, no appetite, and to compel a child to swallow food when it is distasteful is an absurdity and a cruelty, in the opinion of Hall's Journal of Health.

Irish Home Rule.

It is time for plain speaking about the Irish situation. It is folly for Ireland or the friends of Ireland to delude themselves with false hopes of the triumph of home rule in the near future. The last hope vanished with Gladstone's retirement. The day of home rule for the Irish people is still a long way off. Lord Rosebery knows it. Mr. Gladstone knows it, and the knowledge was one of the principal causes of his resignation. The leaders of the Irish party, in their secret hearts, know it.—London Cor. New York Sun.
